

Abstract of the Disclosure:

A common memory is provided for a plurality of CPUs. Only one or several particular ones of the CPUs are connected to an address bus provided for addressing the common memory. The 5 other CPUs access the common memory via one of the CPUs connected to the address bus. This means that the system requires only relatively short buses and/or buses with little branching, even though the system has a common memory.

MB/kc